Right now, after 4 years of studying at the NYCM I play several Bach 2 part inventions and the Chopin Eb nocturne. I have also started the Beethoven G major piano sonata (Op.49 no.2). I decided to become a student of the NYCM after I was impressed by what I heard at student recital in Steinway Hall. As I thought about it, I realized no other people better understood and represented the music ...

SS: There was a time, before the advent of Chaos Theory in the 1970s and 80s when it was widely thought that if a system was deterministic—meaning that it was governed by rules that don't have any element of chance in them, no randomness—then, like a movie, if it were restarted, it would always play out the same way. Any system that was deterministic would be predictable. . . in ...
